General King's remark was made after a day of testimony in the court, and seemed likely to fluster the prosecution. Mitchell's counsel did not return, and the court-martial was adjourned.

HURT IN CRASH

PLEA HITS MOTHER OF HEINLEIN

Jury Leonard A. Watts was even-tempered during the progress of the car-bomb murder trial today, and collapsed in his seat. Judge Trade's immediately declared an indefinite postponement.

As defense counsel was drawing for the jury the dread picture of the death-chair and its victim in the trial of the car-bomb bandits in Middlesex Superior Court today, a black-gowned woman staggered from the door, and then collapsed on the corridor outside.

It was Mrs. Nora Heinlein, mother of the defendant, whose plight the attorney was picturing to the jury.

Heinlein's father and mother have been spectators throughout the trial of their son and his codefendants.

As the lawyer went on with his description of the scene in the death chamber should the jury bring a finding of guilty of murder in the first degree against his client, the mother's hysterical sobs echoed through the courtroom from the room where she had been placed by Sheriff Fairbairn.

Attorneys for Heinlein and John McLaughlin both made the point in their final argument that their clients were waiting in the automobile for Leveaux at the time the gun-

SEEK 'MYSTERY CHUM' IN BANKER'S SUICIDE
William Reynolds Tower, Hub bank man, who committed suicide following a quarrel with antislavery friend, a mysterious "Billie" McKee, had threatened suicide before. It was revealed today by another friend, Kenneth Perry, law school student. The banker contemplated suicide in Worcester, Mass. according to Perry, for he was told by Tower that he had written seven "last letters" at a Boston hotel that afternoon and intended "finishing it."

Medford Examiner Down said today that he was at a loss to attribute a motive for the strange suicide, except that Tower had been brooding. "His father and brother asked me today to what I attributed the motive for suicide," declared the medford Examiner. (Continued on Page 2, Column 1.)

"I am entirely at a loss to attribute a motive from the evidence at hand. The investigation with the police and I made no attempt to live for that he was one of the bright prospects at the trust company, where he worked and was looked upon as a rising financial leader.

"Apparently in the period of depression, I am advised that Kenneth Perry made a plan to leave to use of all he knew. Perry was badly upset by the affair.

U. S. to Spend 50 Million Buying Liberty Bonds

Washington, Nov. 27 (U.S.N.S.)—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon announced that the government will buy $50,000,000 of Third Liberty Loan Bonds directly from their owners.

This purchase "across the counter" is declared by Secretary Mellon, in the interest of government economy, to save the sales commissions that in the past have been paid to brokerage houses.

The bonds must be offered to the government at not more than 101½ and accrued interest.

Parties, Perry revealed, because he had $250,000 or more in his own right, and made frequent voyages, his most recent visit amounting to nearly $20,000.

The quarrel with McKee broke the bank man all up, Perry said, and he endeavored vainly for several days to reach him either personally or by telephone and make peace. Each time, however, McKee repulsed the overtures and insisted on pursuing his anger.

Early on Wednesday, Perry revealed in his later story to the police, Tower called him on the telephone, said he was "feeling blue" and asked Perry to come over.

The pair met and Tower confided his troubles, stating that McKee had refused to make peace and had threatened court action because of the black eye.

"The world is against me; what's the use of living?" Tower remarked, according to Perry, and he refused to be cheered up.

AGAIN CALLED UP FRIEND.

Twice a week the pair then took Tower declared that he did not know how McKee had come by his black eye, that Tower had found McKee still in the apartment Sunday morning and had no recollection of difficulties the preceding night, but supposed he had inflicted the injury.

Unable to find McKee, the couple went back to Cambridge, and Tower, according to Perry, returned to his apartment alone.

Half an hour later, Perry said, Tower called him on the telephone again and asked him to come over.

Perry saw the butt of a pistol—a .38 calibre police weapon—sticking from Tower's pocket and asked what he had the gun for.

"That's a gun I got out of the office and I'll have it back three Friday morning," said Tower. "I can show you how I got it."

Perry said he remained with Tower until after midnight, attempting to take him out of trouble and suicide, and playing the phonograph. Tower, impatiently, suggested that his friend had lost his mind, and Perry told him good night.

THIRD SHOT RING OUT.

He was downstairs, opening the front door, Perry said, when he heard a shot above.

BREMER DEATH GREAT SHOCK TO FAMILY

Mrs. S. Parker Bremer returned to Boston today, distraught by the supposed suicide of her husband, wealthy Boston cotton merchant, who, it is believed, leaped to death from the liner Fort Victoria as his wife waited in New York for him to join her at Thanksgiving dinner.

Mrs. Bremer went immediately to the home of her brother-in-law, Dr. John L. Bremer, a Harvard professor, at No. 418 Beacon street, and there it was said she was in no condition to talk of the tragedy.

The explanation of Bremer's act is believed to be contained in two letters which were left, sealed and addressed in Bremer's stateroom, mailed when the vessel docked in New York, and sent to the family.

Dr. Henry H. Paxon, an interne at Massachusetts General Hospital, and son-in-law of Bremer, assumed the role of spokesman for the family today, after he met Mrs. Bremer at the Back Bay station and escorted her to her place of refuge.

The two unmarried daughters of the Bremer, Miss Ruth and Miss Mabel Bremer, who reside at the Fenwick Hotel, went to their mother's side and were themselves too shocked to speak of their father's death. Before leaving New York, however, Mrs. Bremer explained that her husband had been overwhelmed by business cares and went to Bermuda for rest.

Bremer was head of Parker, Wilder & Co., one of the foremost cotton firms in the country and descendant of one of Boston's oldest families. He was a figure in the war when Victoria battled raging seas which delayed her arrival in New York many hours.

Passengers on the boat said they noted Sir Bremer continuously pining the deck as though in the throes of a fit of deep depression.

Why Did I Eat Too Much? Flying Funerals. When? He Confesses Too Much Finance, Easily Scaled.

By Arthur Brisbane.

TEN MILLIONS, old and young, are asking, "Why did I eat too much?" And that measures our civilization. We shall not learn to think, until we at least learn how to eat, and not to eat.

AFRICAN SAVAGES capture a hippopotamus, eat all their distended stomachs, sleep, walk, eat, sleep, sleep again and so on.

Some die of ptomaine poisoning, as the meat gets bad, the survivors think they have had a good time, and give thanks to the pink nosed idol that they happen to worship.

WE IMPROVE on the hippopotamus eaters, and the land forces and holding combined times in time of peace.

The army, the General said, was organized primarily for duty on land, the navy for duty on water, and they overlapped at the shore line.

In additional service, which overlapped both of them," he said, "would be a separate air service," "would make co-ordination absolutely impossible."

TURKEY, STRIVING for western modernism, adopts the automobile hearse and Mohamudan corpses bound for Paradise will hurry to the grave, as we do.

The next step will be the final funeral, conveying some particular corpse to its chosen romantic plot on a distant mountain top.

YOU MAY READ, in headlines of a future day, "Aristocratic millionaires funeral, bound for top of Mount McKinley, crashes, all hurt, except the corpse."

CHURCHILL, INTERESTING British statesman, grandson of Jerome, American stock broker, confesses to such when he admits that he "originated the idea of tanks in 1914."

COLLEGE MEN IN SEARCH FOR CORBETT GIRL

Syracuse Alumni Hunt River Banks as Snow Stops
Other Posses

Northampton, Nov. 27.—As snow drove other posses searching for Alice M. Corbett, South College student who vanished fifteen days ago, to cover today, a systematic search of the Connecticut River banks by Syracuse University alumni was started.

Under the leadership of John J. Malone, former baseball and football captain, who is familiar with all the rapids and currents of the river between here and Holyoke, a group set out in motor boats and row boats.

Malone offered his services and those of the entire Western Mass. chapter of the alumni association to the state police, and Detective Joseph V. Daly accepted.

In hip boots and slickers, Malone led the searchers along the banks of the river, starting from Holyoke where he lives.

Malone offered his aid, also, in dynamiting the river near the dam at Holyoke, and expressed a hope that college men would rally to aid in the task of finding Miss Corbett or her body.

Two of the ten Pinkerton detectives who were hired by the girl's father, admitted that this evening they will go to a fraternity house at Amherst College to again question Thomas P. Stettin, the missing girl's college-boy sweetheart.

Haverhill, Mass., Nov. 27 (U.S.S.)—A woman and two children were burned to death on a farm ten miles south of Haverhill today, when fire wrecked the home as they were sleeping. The husband was awakened by the flames and saved four other children.

Modified.
Two men ordered meals in the restaurant at No. 445 Tremont street. One of them offered $10 in payment. The proprietor, Lenebough Payson, was unable to change the bill from the cash drawer and went to the safe in the rear of the counter for small bills.

As he opened the safe the second man, holding a revolver, ordered him to "throw them up." He did, and the robbers took $1,245 from the safe and between $25 and $30 from the cash register.

The second holdup took place in Cassover street south end. Three men in a touring car drove up to the sidewalk and with drivers armed forced Zacharias Nivalo, of No. 45 Marble road, to hold up his hands while one man relieved him of $55.

The four alleged holdup men that fell into the hands of the Boston police were Ernest Hamilton and Thomas Zenk, both of No. 148 Addison street, Chelsea; Frank Nolan of William Rolle, alias Highway, of No. 114 Spencer avenue, Chelsea; and West Newton street, South End.

Thousands of dollars worth of loot from burglaries and holdups throughout the Irish and suburbs, were seized in the rooms of Rolle, and at police headquarters later, the quartet was identified by a number of holdup victims.

According to the police, Rolle is now out on $2,500 bail in East End hall court for the theft of an automobile and Zenk is on $1,500 bail for a holdup in Lynn.

The Roxbury Crossing police today put the men in a lineup and Zenk was identified as a man who took part in two holdups, while Rolle was identified as a participant in a third.

Ralph Smalley of No. 135 Gramatan way, Dorchester, identified Zenk as the holdup man who with a companion stopped from an automobile in front of the Smalley home and robbed him of $65 on the night of November 14. Zenk also was identified as the man who held up a Dorchester citizen named Goldberg on November 16.

Rolle was identified as a thug who took part in a Malden holdup last Saturday night.

Three holdups were perpetrated in Revere and Malden, the first occurring when three men blackjacked Philip Goldmansky in his store at No. 448 Ocean avenue, Revere. Goldmansky fell to the floor unconscious, the men fleeing with $42.

Two men later entered the store of Barrett Promiel at No. 47 Oak Island, Revere, half a mile away, and at the point of a gun demanded all of Promiel's cash, which proved to be $25. They escaped.

Less than an hour afterward, two men pushed an automobile into the back of Morris Sullivan, proprietor of the Perryway Pharmacy at Cross and Perry streets, Malden, and took $50 from the cash register.

Santa Claus Arrives in Boston Saturday!

You are invited to come to the Baseball Field on Boston Common Saturday at 1 P. M. to join in Welcoming Santa Claus to Boston.

Down from Icy Cape in the far frozen North, Santa Claus and his prancing reindeer are coming—more than eight thousand miles by boat, train and reindeer sled—to be with us during the joyous Christmas season.

Saturday they'll be here—right on the Common—Blitzen, and Dunder and Dasher and Vixen and Prancer and Dancer, with Santa and his little Eskimo helper.

Houghton & Dutton Company invites the children of Boston and New England to the Baseball Field on Boston Common, at 1 o'clock, Saturday, to give dear old Santa Claus and his reindeer a rousing welcome to Boston.

If Santa's reindeer are not frightened of the city and it seems advisable to take them out on Boston's busy streets, Santa Claus will drive his prancing steeds from the Common up Tremont Street, to our store.

LIFE-SAVERS FIGHT TO GET FOUR OFF BOAT

LOCARNO PACTS RATIFIED BY REICHSTAG

Vote is 300 to 174; German Entry into the League Also Approved

Berlin, Nov. 27 (A.P.)—The Reichstag today ratified the security pact and arbitration treaties negotiated at the recent Locarno conference and approved Germany's entry into the League of Nations.

The vote was 300 to 174. Germany, Nov. 27 (A.P.)—Although the Reichstag ratified the Locarno treaties and approved Germany's entry into the League of Nations, today the impression prevails in Berlin that the German government will not forward her application for membership until February, when the Cologne area will have been evacuated.

This would mean a special vote by the League assembly on the admission of Germany at a session in March and the abandonment of the idea to hold the March session of the League council in Berlin.

"LADY BE GOOD" HAS A TANTRUM AT SHOW
 New York, Nov. 27—"Lady Be Good" is a play that needs such a name. At the National Theatre show here the three Ruth Hanners, 16-year-old rising, broke down on stage, sent a detective to the hospital, knocked several men up, caused some women to faint, and smashed all men when she fled to the basement.

QUEEN MOTHER OF BRITAIN BURIED

Tens of Thousands File Past the Royal Bier After Impressive Ceremony

London, Nov. 27 (N.S.A.)—Her requiem over, Queen Alexandra rode today with Britain's mightiest dead in Westminster Abbey, but not for long. The Queen Mother's tomb will be in the solemn splendor of St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, whether the coffin will be carried just before the funeral or new mourning for final sepulture in strict privacy.

The public tribute was paid in the Abbey this morning after the funeral pageant had moved from St. James' Palace to Edward the Confessor's Minster. The solemn pomp of the public ceremonies at the Abbey, in which the Archbishop of Canterbury as primate of the Church of England was the central figure, was hardly more impressive than the tribute of private tears which welled the eyes of thousands of Britons of high rank and of no rank at all.

From midnight onward, braving a freezing wind, men and women gathered about Westminster Abbey and in White Hall. As the funeral cortege left St. James' Palace there began a long fall.

KINGS TRUDGE IN SLUSH
 Kings and princes trudge along behind the coffin of the Queen Mother in slush, the damp snow bespeaking their brilliant military uniforms. Upon the coffin there rested only a wreath of autumn leaves—placed there by King George. As the procession moved slowly ahead, then came the dull boom of the funeral guns, firing a volley every minute, until the procession reached Westminster Abbey.

Hospital companies were engaged tending to those in the throngs who were overcome by cold—many women had to be removed in ambulances. When the great requiem was over and the royal mourners and persons of state had retired the Abbey was thrown open to the public. Tens of thousands filed past the coffin and Victoria street waiting for their chance to enter.

ARCHBISHOP AT HEAD.
 Very impressive was the entry of the cortege through the great west doorway of the Abbey. The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Davidson—a venerable figure in robe and cope—led the cortege at the door and led the procession down through the great nave, past the graves of the unknown dead, through the choir and to the chancel.

As the procession moved through the Abbey the deep voice of the Archbishop was heard intoning the familiar words of the burial service: "I am the resurrection and the life." Presently the sound of a distant chime echoed along the dim aisle. It was sung by a score or more of scarlet robed probationers and other chorists.

NEWTON BOYS ARRAIGNED FOR PETTY SCHOOL THEFTS
 Remittance of the town and county that were the rule in English college towns was the appearance in Newton District Court today of four youngsters charged with trespassing on the property of the Country Day School.

Headmaster E. K. Stearns said that property such as footballs and the like had been missing of late, and that the boys of the town had been charged with trespassing on the property of the Country Day School.

STATE WARNS ONE-MAN LIGHT PLANT TO GET HELP
 The Chester Electric Light Company was warned today by the Public Utilities Commission to cease its "one-man utility operation idea" and put its house in order, or some other company prepared to serve the public adequately and efficiently will be encouraged and assisted in getting the town's business.

Youths Rob Pastor After He Declines "Lawless Age"

Young people are flouting the law more and more and have no respect for the clergy, said the Rev. Thomas Turrell, pastor of the Second Unitarian Church, West Somerville, in a Thanksgiving sermon.

Just to prove this contention, some backsliding youth "burgled" the minister's own home, although he was not the reason for his remarks.

The minister declared the United States cannot hope to lead in the world's work until the country manifests its respect for law.

U. S. PAYS TEN BILLION TAXES

Washington, Nov. 27 (U.S.A.)—American taxpayers will contribute directly and indirectly, close to $10,000,000,000 to the support of federal state, county and municipal government in the year ending next June, according to estimates compiled by treasury experts today.

This enormous amount constitutes what is known as "the national tax bill."

Treasury figures disclosed that the federal government will collect the year approximately $2,000,000,000 exclusive of postal expenses, for the year. President Coolidge has asked the federal departments to keep within a limit of $2,000,000,000.

With Federal expenditure approximately for one-third of the total cost of all governments in the country, high officials are turning to the States and cities for co-operation in the general drive against waste.

GIRL, 14, WINS PRAISE WITH WORK AT RECITAL

At a concert at Jordan Hall, Miss Brook, fourteen-year-old student, showed unusual progress for her extreme youth. Her program included several pieces which were difficult, and offered the listener ample opportunity for hearing the pianist at her best.

Young Miss Brook was most pleasing in a short selection of Beethoven's "Sonata," which she played with ease and spirit. Much of her program was unfortunately chosen, namely the Bach-Busoni Concerto, and the Chopin Sonata in A major.

BIGELOW ASKS STRICTER MILK STANDARDS

health Commissioner Urges Only Pasteurized and Tubercular Test Be Sold

Legislation prohibiting the sale of milk which is not pasteurized or which does not come from tuberculin tested cows is recommended by Dr. George H. Bigelow, commissioner of public health in a report filed today with the legislature.

Dr. Bigelow's report states that the present law is not sufficient to protect the public health, and that stricter standards are necessary. He recommends that only pasteurized milk be sold, and that all milk be tested for tuberculosis.

Dr. Bigelow also recommends that the law be amended to require that all milk be tested for tuberculosis, and that only milk from tuberculin tested cows be sold.

Dr. Bigelow's report is being considered by the legislature, and it is expected that the law will be amended to meet his recommendations.

A Girl's Soul Stirs and She Wonders Why; Going Out Into the World to Learn of Love

Feed by Lucerne Herald of the Evening Star. A sudden shyness, a wave of nervous panic dried Nancy's throat. She rose abruptly. "Let's go," she said.

SYNOPSIS

NANCY HAWTHORNE, motherless, lives in an English country village with her father. She has an experience with Curly Collins, a country boy she has befriended. She discusses what occurs with her father. Then comes a strange stirring and she decides to see the world. In Paris she meets Cornelia Evans, daughter of an American millionaire. The girls form a studio partnership. They give a housewarming. Nancy meets Jean de Courville, French cavalry lieutenant, who pursues Cornelia. She also meets Count de Bercey Mormal, a man who accosted her in the street. The count is Cornelia's brother-in-law. Nancy scornfully rejects his friendship. Lloyd Evans, Cornelia's brother, and his chum, Bob Whittears, Oxford undergraduates, telegraph they're coming to Paris. Nancy is strangely affected by the news. Bob comes, Nancy flances him. A love scene that she witnesses between a soldier and a girl opens her eyes to herself.

CHAPTER 18

The striking thing about the Grand Hotel at Parame was its cleanliness. The girls were sharing a room which was almost monastic in its simplicity. It seemed to be mostly floor, beamed to the point of danger. By way of furniture, there didn't seem to break the floor line at all—there was a large double bed, a washstand, the chest of drawers and two stiff wooden chairs. Yet the room seemed to be filled with color. The window was the secret. It framed a great slice of sea, sky and sand—a jade-green sea, pashed by reddish-brown rocks and stippled with white-caps; a sky of unbelievable blue; and a curving sweep of sand that was the color of molten gold.

side of it was strung out a collection of blossoming villas. These were the sea and each seemed to be a part of the scene. In the distance, a small white boat was seen. The girls looked at each other and smiled. They were in a beautiful spot. They were in a beautiful spot. They were in a beautiful spot.

BOSTON COLLEGE AND HOLY CROSS ARE READY

PURPLE IS FAVORITE FOR A WIN

Annual Clash at Braves Field Tomorrow Will Attract 45,000 Persons

When the purple and white of the Boston College football team clash with the red and white of the Holy Cross team tomorrow at Braves Field, the spectators will witness one of the most exciting football games of the season. The two teams are evenly matched, and the game is expected to be a close one. The Boston College team, coached by Frank S. O'Connor, has a record of 10 wins and 2 losses. The Holy Cross team, coached by William J. Mulvaney, has a record of 9 wins and 3 losses. The game is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. tomorrow at Braves Field. It is expected that over 45,000 persons will attend the game.

The success of White Owl is no different from that of other leading brands. It has taken the lead by giving for greater value at smaller profit per sale and depending upon huge volume for ultimate return. There are many examples of the soundness of this principle but in the cigar field, none so marked as White Owl. And never did this policy work to greater benefit to the smoking public.

THE English Bible of today is the work of many scholars. It did not take its final form in the famous King James version for seventy-five years after Tyndale's death. But it bears the impress of Tyndale's genius.

Story of a Girl Who Goes Out Into the World to Learn of Love

There was a girl who had been brought up in a very sheltered life. She had never known the world, and she was very innocent. She had been told that the world was a very bad place, and she had been taught to be very careful. But she was very curious, and she wanted to know what the world was like. So she decided to go out into the world and learn of love.

The Brain Shrinks

Then Come Ghosts

When men get old their brains and their imaginations shrink, the wonders of real life cease to satisfy them, and they turn toward ghosts, spirits—example: Flammarion, Conan Doyle, and that very great scientist, Sir Oliver Lodge.

This doesn't mean that there is anything in the ghost or spirit theory, it only means that tired brains or feeble imaginations call for abnormal wonders.

It turns out that a "marvelous spirit picture" of St. John the Evangelist, which Conan Doyle got "direct from spirit land," is a slightly changed photograph of a painting by Murillo.

An earnest, aged spiritualist once brought to this writer a spirit photograph of Dickens, which the spiritualist had seen taken. It was an exact photograph of a well-known oil painting of Dickens in his velvet smoking jacket.

Men are PUT here to WORK here. And all they will ever know about spirits they will know after they LEAVE here.

Halt! Says Finance

It Does Not Like Russia

The real government of this world, interrupted occasionally by military outbreaks, is a government by well organized FINANCE. You realize this when you read the protests sent by the Inter-Allied Committee for Russian aid companies with headquarters at Antwerp, warning the Belgian Government against recognizing the Russian Government.

The Bolshevik Government repudiated bonds bought by childish American bankers whose office boys could have told them that the investment was stupid.

They repudiated billions of the Czar's bonds bought by the French. And they wiped out the "rights and interests in the oil industry of the old Russian empire," belonging to the Inter-Allied Committee.

That offensive and defensive alliance of well organized capital, actually believes that it can dictate to the Belgian Government. And, so it can, probably.

Trouble Ahead, Says Louis S.

The Farmer Is Getting Tired

Louis Seibold, studying Western agricultural regions for Mr. Curtis, reports a threatening situation. Wheat and corn producers haven't had their share of the general prosperity. Corn growers this year have produced three billion bushels. The market can absorb only two and one-half billions. Europe doesn't want our surplus corn.

There will come a political revolt, says Seibold, unless the Administration finds a way, and the city dwellers realize the importance of solving the farmer's problem.

One of the farmer's troubles is partly his own creation. He helped with his political influence to establish the immigration laws that make it practically impossible for him to hire "hands" at a price that will pay him a profit. You can harness farm horses, load hay, clean the stable and do chores on an eight-hour basis at American wages and compete with farmers in Europe, Asia and South America.

Snobs and Immigration

The Courageous, Enterprising and Venturesome Have Come Here From Europe

Immigration is a difficult and delicate question. Snobs in the old days used to say that we were getting the roughnecks, trouble-makers and scum of Europe. It was not true. The courageous, the enterprising, the venturesome came here. They are found among our best citizens now, the salt of the earth.

The main defensible basis for our exclusion policy is industrial. On that aspect there are two distinct considerations, sharply opposed to each other and yet both reasonable.

On the one side it is said that there is much constructive work to be done over here that settled Americans will not do, having fitted themselves for easier and more profitable occupations, while sturdy foreigners, accustomed to poverty and long, hard hours, would be delighted at the chance.

On the other side, many of the labor unions urge that the only way to maintain and to raise still higher the American standard of living is to restrict immigration. But let us try not to fall into a sanctimonious state of mind about the inferiority of newcomers.

England's Heavy Loss

Royal Family Symbolizes in a Britisher What the Flag Does to an American

England has lost more than a fragile old lady, more than a once great Queen, in Alexandra's death. England has lost one of the symbols that went into the very warp and woof of national character.

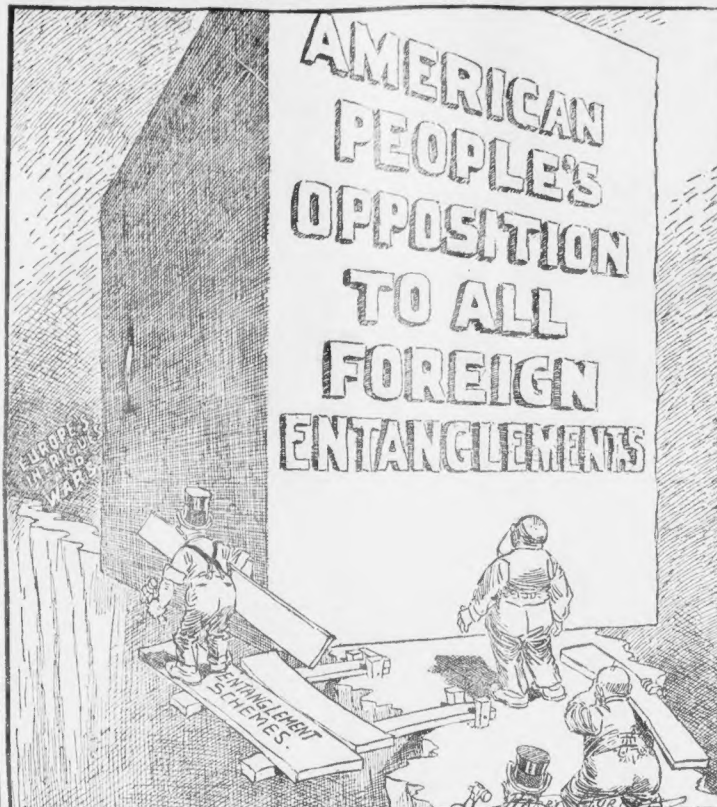

To the Englishman the royal family symbolizes what the flag symbolizes to Americans. About the King and his kin centres the national emotion. America is more fortunate in that the flag is a symbol more abstract, hence more pure, and hence less subject to human change. But the English symbol is a broader one.

In addition to providing the centre of national emotion the King and his kin set the fashion for national life. Since the days of that great old woman, Victoria, this fashion has been in the main salutary.

Alexandra earned the affection and respect of British millions by the sturdy simplicity with which she carried on the Victorian tradition, at which the sophisticates are inclined to laugh, through the glittering days of her husband, Edward VII.

As an exponent of all that was best in the British home her services of example to the nation may best be measured by the stoutness with which the British home and all it means has resisted the post-war temptation to dabble in revolution and balahevisism.

Trying to Get Around It

No expression of political will was ever more emphatic than the declaration of the American people that they do not want foreign entanglements. Yet there are those who insist on the risky business of getting around that declaration. Only last week, for instance, the World Court showed how much a creature it is of the League of Nations. It forced the Turks to yield to the League's sentiment of the Mosul boundary question or defy the "world" as represented in the League.

One plan is to get the United States into the World Court on just such flimsy scaffolding as the Turks were given.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A HUSBANDLY woman says her husband is so successful in her washing machine.

HE figures the quicker she gets her laundry work done, the more time she'll have to rest.

OF course right now she's taking in a lot of outside washing to pay for the machine.

BUT her husband says her with the payments. He thinks up excuses to give the collector.

HE goes to the door and hands them everything except money.

THE hardest thing in the world to make is an easy payment.

SOME girls won't even become engaged to you if they know you have an old-fashioned wash tub.

THEY'RE not going to do the kitchen work in some stranger's home.

ONE girl who got married the other day had a washing machine clause inserted in the divorce papers.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

FOR weeks the talk and roar of battle lunged over the offices of the opposing attorneys in the divorce suit. Charges and counter charges were hurled back and forth.

"It is a deliberate conclusion," said the judge, "that neither party is entitled to a decree."

This is a true story. It concerns a national famous case, we permit of which have filled the papers during this summer.

"Can any beauty, wisdom, force or dignity emanate from a comely-type baggage in which madhouse life is led to a mad and rotten loaf?"

Does it not make a mockery of our whole conception of love, if this be "help" indeed?

Does it not, indeed, violate the most sacred precept of our constitution by enslaving two human beings against their will?

For this is slavery—nothing more.

I am not advancing divorce. I deplore it. I regard it as a most serious menace. But I do NOT believe that it is right or decent or even lawful, to force two people to live wedded when every fibre of their being cries out with longing each against the other. And if divorce be a shame to our country, as it actually is—THEN MARRIAGE CONTRACTS ARE AN EVIL GREATER SHAME.

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland

"N thirty-five," declares America's most popular Professional Opus. Just like that!

If this be true, they are all certainly wondrously normal. For, in these days, if you want to find a man who knows how to make love, you will have to look far and wide.

The younger generation have learned all they know of love-making at getting parties, which is the burning table-manners of a cafeteria or learning classical dancing at a cakewalk.

As a matter of fact, the most delightful lovers in the world are men between thirty and fifty. The few thirty-threes are apt to be blithering idiots, and, after fifty, they become cynical, blasé and sentimentally fly-blown.

In the college expedition to the confirmation of Professor Miller's result seems to have been furnished already in the office, renewed and long continued tests to which it was subjected have been announced.

Not only will the star field around the sun be photographed, as has been done before, but a new feature is to be added in an attempt to determine by means of photographs whether any deflection of the rays is produced by refraction of the light where the rays pass through the corona atmosphere.

Such a deflection might account for that part of the star shift claimed to have been observed at previous eclipses, which is not explainable on Newton's theory. For Newton's theory calls for a deflection half as great as that calculated by Einstein.

CANNOT UNDERSTAND WHAT WE DO NOT LOVE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I THINK it is Goethe who said that what we do not understand we cannot really possess. We may go a step further back, and say that what we do not love we cannot understand.

And then we have got down to the roots of property. For there is but one real property owner in the world, and that is love.

There is but one sort of Real Estate, and that is Human Souls.

You do not really possess anything else. This is proved by the great test of all human values, Death.

You cannot own land or houses or books or pictures or cattle or clothing, for Death strips you of all these things.

We say there is no such thing nowadays as one person owning another; on the contrary, that is the only kind of ownership there is.

If I love you I own you. You are mine and no force or legal process can deprive me of you. Because if I love you I understand you, and if I understand you I possess you.

Who steals my purse, said Shakespeare, steals trash; 'twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands. You can keep them. You can keep others away from them. You can destroy them. But you cannot have them unless you understand them.

Walt Whitman owned America, for he understood it. Jesus Christ owned the world, for He loved it.

What right have you to that beautiful set of books in your library? You never read them. You never fondle them. They stand there where they have stood for years in their glass coffin. All you ever did was to pay for them. Their real lovers wander about separated from them.

You do not own that park you call yours. There is a little raggedy boy that looks at it through the iron fence every morning. He owns it. And the squirrels scurrying up the trees, and the robins hopping on the lawn, they own it.

If you would be rich you must develop the only thing that can enrich you, which is your understanding. It does no good to heap up jewels and furniture. It is vanity and vexation of spirit.

If you develop understanding you will find plenty of riches to hand. For the greatest treasures are public. Why should you think that you can attract the sage with words and chateaus, when he owns the imperial sun and the uncounted stars and all the woods and fields along the broad highway? Can you lure him with a dollar when he owns the city?

The Nazarene who have scaled the heights of life and breathed the mountain air of wisdom have passed through the crucible of pain. They had to learn poverty that they might learn the nature of riches.

The Nazarene had to pass His forty days in the depth of want. Buddha never saw the great Truth until, stripped of the delusion of property, he meditated under the Bo tree.

Have you learned renunciation? Not until you do learn it shall you understand possession. It has two secrets to impart to the soul. The first is that the real joy of possession comes through understanding.

And the second is like unto it, that the power to understand comes only through love.

EINSTEIN AND NEXT SOLAR ECLIPSE

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of the "Boston Herald" Interest.

SOME of the supporters of the Einstein relative theory are not disposed to give up the fight, although Einstein himself has frankly admitted that if Professor Percival C. Millers demonstration of the erroneousness of the conclusions drawn from the celebrated Michelson-Morley experiment are "confirmed," his theory must fall, and some other explanation must be found for the phenomena that were supposed to uphold it.

To all who are not Einsteinians the confirmation of Professor Miller's result seems to have been furnished already in the office, renewed and long continued tests to which it was subjected have been announced.

Not only will the star field around the sun be photographed, as has been done before, but a new feature is to be added in an attempt to determine by means of photographs whether any deflection of the rays is produced by refraction of the light where the rays pass through the corona atmosphere.

sun during the eclipse, the shift of position, which the light rays passing close to the sun are said to undergo in accordance with the requirements of the Einstein theory.

This expedition, which is under the direction of Professor John A. Miller, of Swarthmore College, is one of the most elaborate that has ever embarked for any astronomical purpose. Cameras ranging in focal length from 10 inches to 45 feet will be employed. The largest camera, with a nine-inch lens, will be solidly mounted on a fifty-foot tower.

Last 3 Minutes

At Benkenon, on the south coast of Sumatra, where the observations are to be made, the eclipses occur about 2:25 p. m. and last three minutes and two seconds.

Not only will the star field around the sun be photographed, as has been done before, but a new feature is to be added in an attempt to determine by means of photographs whether any deflection of the rays is produced by refraction of the light where the rays pass through the corona atmosphere.

Three Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

In the city of Tientsin, China, where 100,000 members of the yellow race live and love and amaze themselves a large number of the inhabitants spend their time coveting these fan-tie "Three Minute Journeys." Each one represents some Chinese in a well-known Chinese way. Arranged along the shelves in the bazaar there are models, warriors, horsemen, soldiers and various other figures, that would appear to dramatic role.

Players leading in the Chinese along and having a regular appeal to popular favor are reproduced in play. These are not only to the constant stream of visitors, but to the natives as well.

Chinese history and dramatic lore are embodied in these miniature models.
